

Male and Female Created He them Genesis 1:27

I can't believe this is a thing that has to be discussed. I never in my wildest dreams ever thought that something so clear cut and obvious should ever have to be explained! Yet here we are in a time where mankind no longer accepts that there are only two genders! Thankfully the Bible speaks to this issue and is as clear as anyone could ever need. Gender refers to a physical condition, not an emotional one. One is not assigned a gender by a doctor, but by God Himself.

“Male and female”. In this simple verse we see the names of all the genders ever created. Since we can count we can also finalize how many of them there actually are. Anything else is a fabrication of a confused or deceived mind. The idea of any more than 2 genders is a ploy by the devil to get us to reject God and to make the individual to feel special. Many cling to transgenderism because they long to feel unique or a part of a special class of people. Others do so because they seek to reject tradition and the God in whom it belongs. Either way it is play acting for the sake of self-worship. I was baffled that scientists, schoolteachers and the government would agree with this nonsense until I remembered the reprobate mind of man. Rejecting what God has to say and clinging to nonsensical ideas has been a mainstay of our relationship with Him since the day we fell!

Laying the nonsense aside let's focus on what God did here. God created Adam in His own image. I have heard this argued two different ways. Some believe that this phrase means that God gave us certain of His characteristics. That we in some ways resemble Him either by nature or by physical appearance. Others believe that this means that God created us according to the image of us He had in His head. Both are obviously true. God gave credit to none other than Himself (all three part of Him) for creation. It was all made according to His design or image in His head. It would make no sense to just make that distinction although it is very clearly true, we are made by the design He had in mind. This verse more likely telling us that we share attributes with God. He doesn't outline what or how here, we just know that He did it.

He created man and woman. Both distinct in their appearance and ability. Neither more valuable in God's eyes than the other. We share the same value, and would be worth little without the other. Adam without Eve is an endangered animal and Eve would be too if the illustration were reversed. Adam had no business being alone. God gave Adam certain strengths and abilities but there were somethings he couldn't do. He did the same for Eve. When put together Adam's strengths matched Eve's inability and the things that Adam couldn't do, Eve could.

There is no shame in being a man. Modernity asks men to apologize for our masculinity and strength. They want us to have softer characteristics and be more passive in our nature. This is a joke. We have been given what we have because God gave it to us. We should be tough; we should prioritize solving a problem over whining about it and focusing on our feelings about it. We should be willing to fight for and defend our homes and families, it's our responsibility.

There is no shame in being a woman. To be able to create and nurture life is a miracle. To have a mind capable and strong enough to build the next generation, run a home and do a host of many other things is a gift! The natural patience, intellect and intuition that God gives to a woman is something society would fall apart without. Reject the world's attempt to make you more masculine and be glad for what you are.

Conclusion: God created male and female. Let's settle into our roles and enjoy the perks of what God has given to our individual genders!
